

COOKIE POLICY

Last updated: 1st October 2020

This Website (referred to in these “terms of use” as the website) is owned and operated by The Up-Family Pty Ltd, who is referred to in this Cookie Policy as “we”, “us”, “our” and similar grammatical forms.

Our Cookie Policy explains what cookies are, how we use cookies, how third-party partners may use cookies on our Websites and your choices regarding cookies.

General information about visits to our Websites is collected by our computer servers, with small files “cookies” that our Websites transfers to your computer’s hard drive through your Web browser (if you allow the delivery of “cookies”). The “cookies” are used to improve our system security. The anonymous non-personal information that we collect and analyse is not personal information as described in the Privacy Act.

1) Why do we use “cookies” and other web use tracking technologies?

- a) When you access our Website, small files containing a unique identification (ID) number may be downloaded by your web browser and stored in the cache of your computer. The purpose of sending these files with a unique ID number is so that our Website can recognise your computer when you next visit our Website. The “cookies” that are shared with your computer can’t be used to discover any personal information such as your name, address or email address; they merely identify your computer to our Websites when you visit us.
- b) We can also log the internet protocol address (IP address) of visitors to our Website so that we can work out the countries in which the computers are located.
- c) We collect information using “cookies” and other tracking technologies for the following reasons:
 - i) to help us authenticate users on sign in to the application; and
 - ii) to provide personalised services to each user of our Website to make their navigation through our Website easier and more rewarding to the user;

What are your choices regarding cookies?

- a) If you are unhappy about having a cookie sent to you, you can set your browser to refuse cookies or choose to have your computer warn you each time a cookie is being sent. However, if you turn your cookies off, we will not be able to authenticate your login so you will not be able to use our software.

Please contact us at support@up-family.com.au if you have any questions.